"POWDER MY BACK" starring Irene Rick, a Warner Bros. picture
If this novel

In his excitement Harry had caught Adele's hand and for once she made no move to withdraw from such a familiar situation. It seemed rather nice in fact moving along through these green and yellow plains, hand in hand with this excited person whose eyes sparkled and became so bright when he talked of his plans, his hopes and his ambitions. Adele herself became somewhat excited and sat up and talked and asked questions, and showed on interest.

"I think that's a splendid idea," Adele was agreeing with Harry. "It's the sort of thing Ben—that's the manager of our show—might be in terested in. He always does musical reviews but I think you have a good plot there for a sketch, and one that might work out for a comedy, and one that would be a good drama. I could help you see our manager, of course, and I know most of the people who would be interested in your work. Perhaps the best thing to do—

But Adele's eagerness was suddenly put to a stop. Jowjou, feeling that he was not receiving the attention due to him, applauded with his tiny paws and chattered as loud as he could. Adele and Harry laughed at the funny little creature, but Adele felt that after all, here she was talking sharing ideas, just as she had when she was eighteen and twenty, with others in her profession who had made great plans, and never accomplished them. And she reached into her bag and took out a tiny gold powder compact and scanned her face carefully. She touched the tip of her nose and chin, daintily with the puff, and added a bit of rouge to her lips and was once more the sophisticated actress.

Harry seemed slightly disturbed for the moment. He had not quite realized how much he had been talking how he had been confiding his dearest aspirations and plans to a practically unknown person.

"I'm terribly sorry," he said. "I didn't mean to talk to you to death that way—especially the first time I met you. But you seemed so interested and so sympathetic."

"I take it then that you have not what you might call a circle of the intelligentsia in Brookton?" Her tone was almost sarcastic.

"O, please Miss Dayton—"

"I'm sorry Adele apologized sincerely. I didn't actually mean to say that you have not had many interesting things, and I'd love to talk to you about them some more. Perhaps we can arrange to do as you said—come to see me, and we'll talk the matter over."

"That's very kind of you Miss Dayton," Harry smiled once more. "But what I was really trying to say was that you're the first person—outside of one—that I've ever talked to like this. They'd laugh at me in Brookton. 'Really?' Adele asked amused.

"What is Brookton like now?"

"Just like it's always been, I suppose," Harry returned. "The old girls of the town have something that they call a Ladies' Literary Society—which means I'm not exact—ly are what. But they have meetings—and simply outlandish socials and their idea of a good book is the 'Pollyanna' series, and Keats and Shelly shock them."

"Good heavens," Adele exclaimed. "Have I come to this? She threw up her hands in mock horror."

"I'm afraid you have," Harry laughed. "Because the train's whistling for Brookton now, and you'll have to be getting your bags ready to get off. I'll help you. There aren't any porters around the station, but you needn't worry—everybody in town will be there to catch the train of the celebrated star of 'Powder My Back'."

Somehow the title of her show made Adele laugh. Harry too, seemed amused, as he rose to help Adele and Renee getting their many pieces of luggage together.

"It's a good thing they're accustomed to audiences, Miss Dayton," he informed her.

"Why?" Adele looked up in surprise. "Because they'll have all the brass bands and what-not around there to greet you; besides all the clubs and societies in town, and everyone will be wearing a badge of some kind. You'll be a regular parade."

"Good Lord!" Adele breathed. "Harry—I beg your pardon—Mr. Stark—"

"O, please call me Harry," the young man beamed. "I'd be so frightfully proud."

"All right Harry—but you must call me Adele—somehow that idea made her not only feel better—but she hesitated to say it—yesterday. 'Harry I shall expect you to help me through this siege. You must be my comforter and confidant in times of stress. Promise.' She held out her hand."

"Cross my heart," Harry swore faithfully.

The two shook hands as the train drew up before the Brookton depot.

CHAPTER VII

As the engine puffed and steamed into Brookton the crowd about the station gathered more closely about pushing and exclaiming each anxious to be the first to set their eyes on the distinguished actress. Everybody in town had turned out to greet Adele Dayton. Those who disapproved of her came to stare and gossip; those who were friendly came with Mazie to meet the famous star; those who cared neither one way nor another, lolled about, waiting eagerly for any excitement that was to be found. It was all as Harry had predicted—all that is, but the brass band, and the only reason it wasn't on hand was because Mazie and John were not exactly certain as to whether it was the proper thing to do.

The member of the Brookton Dramatic Club from the High School headed by Mildred, because of her relationship to the actress, had turned out in full regalia of summer organdie and white flannel trousers and two of the boys carried a large white banner with gilded letters that proclaimed to the world that the Club was welcoming Adele Dayton. Mildred the center of attraction for the younger set, naturally, because it was her own aunt who was causing so much furor, and she shyly tried to answer the questions put to her.

Mildred, indeed knew little enough about her aunt, for that was a subject more or less taboo in the Atkins' home. But she had seen numerous photographs of Adele Dayton—both at home in the family album when she grew old enough to follow the magazines and newspapers, she had carefully clipped all the photographs and stories that mentioned the name of the actress. She herself felt proud that her aunt should have won such fame, but she had never been able to talk to her mother about the subject without being hushed.

Mazie had made John dress in his light Palm Beach suit—it was all she could do to make him wear it; he always seemed to feel slightly out of place in it, and thoroughly detested it. She herself had put on her best white linen dress and its starchiness irritated her and her face became more and more red and perspiring as the train pulled in. She looked anxiously at the people about her not quite sure of the situation.

"There's that terrible cat Mrs. Morgan," she nudged John. "I just know she's here so she can talk."

"What—huh? What'd you say?" John grunted mopping his forehead. He never could understand these "asties" of his wife and furthermore he wasn't interested.

"Mrs. Morgan," Mazie whispered louder than ever.

"Che!" John answered mechanically.

Meantime Adele was gazing out the window curiously, anxious to see whether she recognized any of the waiting crowd. The agitated Jowjou chattered and shrieked as the actress and her maid followed by Harry bearing as many of the bags as he could, filed slowly down the aisle. Adele had timed her appearance on the platform perfectly for she waited until everyone else should alight. Then, as they all watched impatiently, she suddenly appeared on the top step poised for the moment her one hand on the railing. Then in another moment she stepped down, her silken encased limbs gleaming in the sun; the soft satin of her suit swathing her graceful form.

Mazie's eyes popped. She gasped. But already Adele was coming towards her, and the plump woman in white linen reached out her arms.

"Mazie is it really you? Adele kissed her sister on both cheeks and glanced about, as though waiting for more worlds to come."

"Oh Adele—Adele—I'm afraid to see you," Mazie was swallowing lips in her throat and trying to look truly important. "And here's Mildred—"

"Oh, Mildred," Mazie called her eldest offspring away from the dramatic club group. "I scarcely expect you'll remember Mildred Adele."

"Not remember my own niece?" Adele exclaimed reaching out one hand to the girl. "Of course I remember Mildred! She kissed her and was kissed shyly in return."

"And John—of course you remember John," Mazie pulled her shrinking husband forward into the center of the crowd.

"Oh, my dear yes," Adele clasped John's hand and in both hers and noticed his awkwardness and embarrassment at the meeting. She realized that John was intensely nervous under the gaze of his fellow citizens as he met his, to his way of thinking notorious sister-in-law. So with a neat little turn Adele stood on tip-toe and kissed John soundly on the mouth leaving a streak of scarlet along his upper lip.

"Well, well Adele, as I live John returned feebly and under the nudgings of his wife and her glances towards his mouth, wiped the rouge from his lip."

"And Maimie—of course you remember Maimie Cathers, she used to be, you know," Mazie was running on. "I think its perfectly dear of you all to give me such a lovely welcome home! Adele flooded the entire platform with smiles. "But I really am tired Mazie from the travelling. Can't we go home and allow me to rest a bit before I meet everybody again. Renee—where's Renee?" she glanced behind her.

"Yes Madame," Renee stepped forward.

"This is my maid, Renee—Renee Mrs. Atkins' Adele introduced the two. The maid curtsied. "Will you take Jowjou Renee?" She placed the mascot in Renee's hands. "And the bags—"

"—you have a car Mazie," she turned to her sister.

"Of course," Adele's Mazie returned proudly. "We're your bags? John got Adele's bags, she nudged her as he band viciously."

"Sure where are they?" John looked about puzzled.

"There—Mr. Stark has them—"

"What?—What'd you say?" Harry had begun to get into Harry's bags and talk to Mildred.

"Why how ever did you happen to get my aunt's baggage? Mildred was asking Harry."

"Well you see I had to go down the line to deliver the heads—I met her on the train," Harry explained.

"O—I see," Mildred returned but her brows puckered into a frown. It seemed strange that Harry should have bumped into Adele on the train then why not. And it might easily happen. But for a moment a small pang of jealousy seized her. Then she laughed—why, how silly to think of Harry and her aunt. Harry was—well, younger, anyhow and Aunt Adele would be interested in him.

"Isn't—aren't she lovely Harry? Mildred turned to the young man smiling. "I think she's perfectly beautiful. And to think that she's going to be at our house too. It's really wonderful."

"She's stunning," Harry admitted to Mildred. "And she talks very well—really intelligent, I mean. I think—"

But Harry was interrupted by the appearance of John Atkins, who was now hurrying forward to collect Adele's baggage and put it into the car while Mazie tried to introduce her sister to some of the old friends who remembered 'Adele' when she was a little girl. But 'Adele' was only too anxious to get away from all of them. So John with the aid of Harry got everything settled in the car, and when they were finally accomplished he found that he had no room for passengers.

"Oh we can all ride over in the Gordon's car," Mazie sent a cutting look towards her husband, as though she blamed him for the entire affair. "It's perfectly right, John, although you might have got us in first. But no use crying over spilt milk. I always say," she laughed affectionately. "Though I did want Adele to see how nice our car rides."

"But darling I'll have weeks to find that out," Adele comforted her sister. "If we can all climb into Maimie's car I'm sure it will be splendid. I just was to get out of this boiling sun."

"Of course. Come on Maimie," Adele drew her friend and her sister along together. Mildred, come on. I want you home! she tossed back the words to her daughter.

"Oh, do bring Mildred with us," Adele suggested. She could see her niece watching her adoringly and she felt a sympathy for the young girl that made her want to take her under her wing, and away from these people who seemed so jolly and heavy against her slender youthfulness.

"She'll only crowd us, Adele," Mazie answered. "But it you insist, Mildred—"

"Yehoo, Mildred," Mazie signalled. "Come on."

Mildred and Harry were already following the entourage towards the Gordon car. Mazie, Adele and Renee piled into the rear seat, while Mildred sat in front with Mrs. Gordon. About the side of the car where the actress was sitting and once more that sudden jealous surge immersed Mildred, but she forgot it immediately, whenever she looked at her aunt. Already she had formed a tremendous liking for the older woman—like a sort of bond that existed between them without its having been mentioned by either.

THE EXAMINER'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF PROV. MARKETS

CATTLE

BEEF—Edmonton reports the market this week as being about steady with that of last week. Choice heavy steers brought from $8.75 to $9; choice light $9 to $9.40; good from $8.50 to $8.75; medium $8 to $8.25; common from $7 to $7.50. Choice heifers $9 to $9.50 with odd ones making up to $9.75; good kinds brought from $8.50 to $9. Choice cows made from $7.75 to $8.25, with occasional sales at $8.50; good kinds went from $7.50 to $7.75; medium $6.50 to $7; common $5 to $6 and canners from $3.50 to $4.50. Choice bulls brought from $3 up. Choice calves brought from $12 to $14 and common kinds $6 to $10. FEEDERS STOCKERS—Feed or steers made from $7 to $8; stock steers from $6 to $7.75; stock heifers $5 to $6.50; and stock cows $4.50 to $5.50. HOGS—Edmonton quoted $9.50 for thick smooths, and select hogs going at $10 SHEEP—Receipts at both Calgary and Edmonton are very light. Prices unchanged.

GRAIN

The market at Winnipeg yesterday showed an advance in spite of the fact that there was little export demand. The bullish factors were obtained from a report by Broomhall to the effect that warm weather was needed in Europe to stimulate the growth, and news items stating that a demand for grain or flour might be expected from Russia.

BUTTERFAT—BUTTER—MILK—BUTTERFAT—Dropped 1c on Monday, and another 3c on Wednesday morning, thus making special grade now worth 35c; first 33c; second, 30c at the centralizers with country prices 2c lower. Receipts said to be picking up readily. CREAMERY BUTTER—This market declined 2c Wednesday morning, thus No. 1 can tins are 40c; No. 2 37c; No. 3 33c; and No. 2 at 36c. At present rate of increase in cream deliveries there will soon be surplus butter on hand with no place to ship to. Market weak DAIRY BUTTER—Deliveries in top grade light for which there is a good demand. Prices easier. Lot of lower grades offered MILK—Unchanged in prices after the decline of last week. Considerable skimming being done.

POULTRY—EGGS

POULTRY—Little or no live or fresh killed stuff being handled in heavy classes. Odd broilers being offered but prices are too high for active trading. Good demand for nearly everything in heavier birds. Storage stocks nearly cleaned up now. EGGS—Some section of trade report receipts light and demand as good; others that it is just the reverse. Number of hot water eggs being handled, and very few of stocks out of recent shipments can be put into storage for this reason. Prices generally are unchanged with larger dealers; prices with the smaller men are up. POTATOES—Deliveries from country points and from market gardeners are fairly heavy this week; these are easily handled by consuming demand. Prices steady. Seed stocks finding good outlet, but they are nearly all registered stuff.

HAY—GREENFEED—OATS—HAY—Demand picked up slightly during the week with country point dealers. City trade also fairly active. Receipts in most cases are not hard to obtain. Quality holding up well. Prices unchanged. GREEN FEED—Trade at city markets is fairly active as they are moving it in small lots. Country demand very slow, however. FEED OATS—Good demand prevails in this market but practically impossible to obtain supplies. Prices unchanged.

POETIC LEGS

They talk today of nobby legs;
Of sloppy legs and knobby legs;
Of skinny, fat and flabby legs;
But some of us old-fashioned eggs
Who do not care for silken legs
Have cravings still for certain legs
Say, roasted legs of lamb.

Health Service of the CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

BLOOD PRESSURE

Blood pressure is the force that the heart exerts in order to pump the blood through the circulatory system. The heart is a hollow muscular organ which acts as a pump to keep the blood in circulation. The blood leaves the heart in two streams. One stream carries the blood to the lungs where it is purified; the other stream goes to all parts of the body, carrying food to the tissues.

The arteries are hollow tubes which carry the blood. Normal arteries are soft and elastic. The impulse of the heart beat is carried along through the arteries and can be felt at the wrist, where it is called the pulse.

In normal, healthy body, the blood pressure is normal. Certain abnormal conditions, particularly those affecting the heart, arteries and kidneys, cause an alteration in the blood pressure and it becomes abnormal.

An abnormal blood pressure is not a disease but it is a symptom of some abnormal condition. It is a warning sign and the physician seeks for and treats the cause.

Disregard of the needs of the body for exercise, rest, proper food and such things throws a needless strain upon the whole system, and one symptom of this is frequently an increased blood pressure.

The family physician should be consulted regularly for advice as to how to live. The periodic health examination is not only for the purpose of discovering abnormal conditions, but also for receiving advice as to how to keep normal.

Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 134 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

FRECKLED KID WITH TOM

Some day a patient mathematician will estimate how much each of

"Spec" O'Donnell's freckles is really worth. "Spec" claims more freckles to the square inch than any other fifteen-year-old in Hollywood. The claim has never been disputed, because he is so busy in pictures there hasn't been time to count them.

His most recent appearance took place as a juvenile admirer of a famous fighter—Sam McCarver, who is none other than Thomas Meighan, in "We're All Gamblers" which reaches here for Tuesday and Wednesday next week. James Cruze directed for Paramount.

Most of "Spec's" education has been received in studios. A teacher is always stationed on the set to conduct courses for him. Within the past few months he has played in "Casey at the Bat" and in Florence Vidor's "The World at Her Feet."

THE AUTO LICENSE PROBLEM.

I have a peculiar license this year remarked the high school teacher. "The first of the six figures is equal to the sum of the last two; the fourth is equal to the sum of the second and third; the second is equal to the sum of the third and fifth; the fifth figure is twice as much as the third; while the third figure is half the difference between the first and last." What was the teacher's license number?—831426.

Add together the year of your birth the year of your marriage, the year in which Columbus discovered America, your present age, number of years married, and the number 436. The result will be 5,782 in every instance.

GRAPEFRUIT COCKTAIL

6 tablespoons grapefruit juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons orange juice
4 tablespoons sugar
Few grains salt
1 cup mineral or ice water
8 springs mint.

Mix ingredients thoroughly. Put crushed ice in cocktail glasses, pour in mixture and serve garnished with sprigs of mint.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY OUR LOCAL AUTO DEALERS FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL

PLAY SAFE! BE CAREFUL

As the Motoring Season for 1928 begins, we the undersigned automobile dealers of the Town of Wainwright wish to bring forcibly to the earnest attention of every car owner and prospective owner the necessity of exercising all possible care and precaution while operating an automobile.

Whether on the highways, side road or private drives, BE CAREFUL.

¶ The Level crossing tragedies year by year grow greater; Pedestrians, struck by wanton drivers, killed or maimed for life, in 1927, show how great is the need of being at all times on the safe side by driving carefully. PLAY SAFE. No one is ever in such a hurry that he can afford to gamble a life or a limb against a minute.

¶ Remember the death's head that rides hooded and cloaked on the pilot of every speeding railroad engine. Railroad trains have to maintain schedules. The public, of which you are one, demands it, so don't expect railroad trains to be conveniently out of the way simply because you wish to cross the track. Every railroad track is a sign for you to be careful—to "Stop Look and Listen"—Those signs are there for a purpose—not for a joke.

¶ And above all be careful on the highways. Remember the ordinary rules of courtesy. You wouldn't dream of stepping in front of a person on the streets, if in so doing you had to walk on his toes or otherwise affront him. They why "cut in" dangerously with a ton of speeding death in your hands, imperiling the lives of others as well as your own?

¶ "We're for Care and Courtesy, Are You?" We're behind the Government of Alberta in a campaign to rid our Highways of the death toll that each season exacts. Have your headlights focussed to conform to the required Government standard, make yourself acquainted with the rule of the road, observe the speed limit in whatever locality you are driving. Keep the text of this slogan in your mind every minute you're at the wheel—

"I'm for Care and Courtesy, Are You?"

SHOULD FARMERS BUY THE SO-CALLED "CURES" FOR RUST

A number of enquires have come to the Dominion Economist as well as directly to the Rust Research Laboratory regarding the merits of certain alleged "cures" for stem rust of wheat. It seems desirable to draw the attention of farmers to a few of the well-known facts about this rust in order that they may be better able to appraise the claims advanced by the makers of such "cures" for the particular treatment or compounds.

(1) Rust has been known as a disease for many centuries. That rust is caused by a parasitic organism has been known for over seventy-five years. Rust occurs in practically all the wheat-growing areas of the world. It is therefore a scourge of wide range and long standing.

(2) The organism causing stem rust is a parasitic plant belonging to a low order of plant life called FUNGI. It grows only in living plants and its growth is retarded by frost. Growing plants attacked by this organism are robbed of both food and water and consequently do not develop normally.

(3) Contrary to a commonly-held opinion, rust is not produced by moist warm weather. Such weather, however, promotes the rapid development of the rust. If the organism is absent no rust will develop.

(4) The rust organism multiplies itself by the production of countless thousands of microscopic seeds, called spores. Masses of these spores have a reddish color and constitute the "red rust" so well-known to farmers. These spores are carried by the wind from the plants on which they are produced to other plants. Whenever a heavy dew or shower or rain occurs these spores readily germinate and infect the plants and produce new crops of spores in about seven or eight days. Every farmer is familiar with the rapidity with which rust spreads. An idea of the enormous number of spores blowing about in the air may be gained from the fact that just before harvest time in 1927 upwards of half a million spores were caught in Southern Manitoba and Southeastern Saskatchewan on individual glass slides, 2 inches by 1 inch, coated with vaseline and exposed during a twenty-four hour period.

(5) The black spores (black rust) which appear at harvest time, are simply another spore form of the same organism.

(6) An investigation carried on for over a period of ten years shows quite conclusively that epidemics of rust in Western Canada are initiated by red spores which are blown northward from fields of rusted wheat lying south of the International Border. There is no evidence that rust epidemics in the Prairie Provinces are of local origin.

(7) The organism which produces rust does not develop in the soil, like the fungi causing root-rots do. DISINFECTION OF THE SOIL CAN NOT THEREFORE DESTROY THE ORGANISM. Moreover there is not authentic record of any case where soil treatment has immunized the plants against rust.

(8) Rusted wheat kernels when sown do not produce rusted wheat plants. SEED TREATMENTS ARE THEREFORE USELESS IN CONTROLLING RUST.

The foregoing are only a few of the well-known facts about rust. From them it is evident that about the only method of controlling rust other than by the development of rust resistant varieties of grain, is by applying something to the wheat plants themselves which will adhere to them for a considerable length of time and which will be toxic to the germinating rust spores. A finely powdered dust is mostly easily applied and adheres quite satisfactorily. Sulphur, in a finely powdered condition fulfills both these requirements and has been demonstrated experimentally to be capable of controlling rust. Sulphur, so applied is effective in controlling all cereal rusts.

AN EXTRA WIFE IS NOW A STAFF

Monte Blue remains with Warner Bros. This was all settled the other day when the handsome, athletic picture star affixed his signature to a new contract. There was a good deal of exultation in Jack Warner's offices in the Hollywood studio when the contract was signed and it was in happy mood that Monte left the office to depart for the South Sea Islands the scene of his new picture.

As the picture star's figure disappeared, Jack Warner gazed out of a window with eyes that didn't seem to focus on anything. He was probably recalling a scene that had occurred just five years before. One of the pictures engrossing the attention of Warner Bros. at the time was a big spectacular affair. Jack Warner wanted to see how work was progressing with its filming and as he reached one of the busy spots he saw a man leap from a balcony and with the aid of a parachute safely come to the ground. Turning to one of the directors he remarked:

"Mighty fine jump. Who is the fellow?"

"They call him Blue—Monte Blue, I think," was the answer. "He's just an extra."

There came an exclamation of praise from Warner as he continued his tour.

And it was this same Monte Blue who had left the office a few moments before with a contract for called for more salary than could be boasted of by any other star in all Hollywood.

BUILT on a wheelbase of 107 inches—four inches longer than before... swung low to the road... and with its hood streaming back in graceful, unbroken lines to blend with contours of the Fisher bodies—the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet is everywhere hailed as a car of outstanding distinction.

The new radiator is higher and narrower, and embellished with a large, flat, all-metal radiator cap. The hood is longer and deeper—vividly interpreting the greater stamina, staunchness and fleetness of the new chassis. Windshield posts are slender and graceful, bodies are beautifully headed and paneled, hardware is of period pattern, and roof-lines are smartly low.

Interiors, too, are impressively rich—with new upholstery, wide, restful seats, and a beautiful enclosed instrument panel—indirectly lighted.

Come, see this great new car—and you'll know why thousands have acclaimed it the world's most luxurious low-priced automobile. C-16-5-2-18

If You Want a Crowd-Talk Out Loud

Whispering ---

Before the advent of the newspaper, information of all kinds was passed from one person to another by word-of-mouth—an unreliable and slipshod method. Relics of this method still survive to-day in those who expect to draw a crowd, or sell to the public, without sufficient advertising. "Everybody knows..." Yes, perhaps, but most people forget "even as you and I"

Talking Out Loud ---

To-day people expect to be told, and reminded and told again about this or that. In short, you must Talk Out Loud to Them. There is only one cheap and effective way of telling all of them and that is through the local newspaper. Talk Out Loud to Them through

VOTE AS YOU LIKE

BUT—VOTE!

What would happen if the citizens of Wainwright were suddenly informed that they would not be allowed to vote in the coming bylaw vote on Thursday?

Suppose a dictator arose in Canada (like Mussolini) unopposed power in Italy) and proclaimed that he would name the Mayor, the Council the School Board and all other officials in the Town of Wainwright! What then?

The old storm about responsible government would at once spring up.
There would be no doubt demonstrations. There would be fervent declarations about the right of citizens to vote, and to say how Municipal monies shall be spent, etc!

The Mayor, Councillors, School
Trustees, etc., would be eloquently informed have to pass the laws and regulations governing the town and school; they have to administer the affairs thereof, and spend the money raised by taxation. Consequently the burgesses have the right to vote, and by that means express their preference on money matters.

But the sorry part of the above argument is the fact that the loudest in an outcry against any other system
—the leaders in any demonstration—would be just those citizens, who, having already the right and liberty to vote neglect to exercise their franchise!

What we have is usually valued lightly; but what we lack is mostly wasted! The vote is the badge of citizenship. It is a badge of honor and should be so regarded. A man or woman does badly by their citizenship when he or she, through carelessness, indifference or negligence fails to employ their vote at the proper time.

Each year all over the Dominion
a great machinery has to be created to bring people to the polls; to induce them to make use of their own privilege—the ballot box! To get them to exercise their franchise, at the time when they can get a closer control of the affairs of their own community than at any other time!
This should not be necessary! Citizens should go proudly to the poll and should resent any suggestion that it is necessary to coax or coerce them to vote.

Burgesses; your opportunity will be here tomorrow (Thursday). Go to the polling place and record your vote. Do not be content with the choice of others—do not let others decide for you as to your ideas or wishes. Make your own choice.

VOTE AS YOU LIKE—But, in any case VOTE! And know then that you have done your full duty to the community.

SHUN
THE PEDDLER

The summer season, now at hand, brings with it an economic ill that annually takes a toll of thousands of ill gained dollars. It is the itinerant peddler, the house to house door bell ringer and those of his kind who travel from place to place plying their trade and imposing on the credulity of the unthinking, offering bargains in this and that which most always turn out to be inferior merchandise sold at higher prices or in short measure. It is well to beware of these fellows and the plausible stories that they tell to engage the interest and confidence of their prospects.

They are of many varieties and with as many kinds of merchandise to sell.
Inferior articles of many kinds are peddled about hither and yon during the summer months. The automobile has been a great aid to this kind of chicanery for after he has landed a few gullible prospects a day's journey will take him far away and beyond the reach of the buyer who discovers that he has been victimized.

What better insurance can there be than buying from the home town merchant? If for any reason the article proves unsatisfactory he is ready and willing to correct the trouble and satisfy his customer. Not so with the peddler—he is gone tomorrow or yet today if the chase gets too hot. He is not seeking to satisfy his customer

—he is after the money alone. The home town merchant stakes his reputation and his success on his record for fair and honest dealing. He may be found at his place of business day
in and day out, in and year out.
There is nothing elusive about him.

When folks want support and contributions for this and that, they know where to find him and he gives willingly and generously. Did anyone ever find at his place of business day
in and day out, in and year out.
There is nothing elusive about him.

A TALK TO HOUSEWIVES
Real warm Summer weather is just around the corner, hot days
when it is impossible to find a cool spot anywhere, when hot food is served and cold dishes are the order of the day. It is then that the housewife has to use her wit to invent and evolve dishes that will be tempting and at the same time nourishing.

The most perfect food we have is milk. It is the cheapest food we have and it is of all foods the most difficult to collect, handle and transport.
It requires the greatest care from cow to container, and from container to consumer. Milk spoils quicker than any food. It is difficult to handle during the winter and much more so during the hot Summer days. It must be kept CLEAN, COLD and COVERED.

Milk tastes good; it is easily digested and is most nourishing. It makes bone, brain and blood. Indeed it isn't too much to say that the vigor and endurance of a nation depend largely on the amount of milk it uses. Milk is the great factor of safety in diet.
It makes the ration complete, promotes growth and keeps the body strong. In the warm months when meat is not desired, various dishes can be made with milk, both hot and cold, and the cold ones are delicious.
The housewife and Mother need never worry about the question of calories and vitamins for the little folks if she feeds them milk, milk that has been kept COVERED, COLD and CLEAN.

The various members of the germ family love two things—Suitable food, warmth in which to grow and multiply. Milk is to them the choicest of foods and warm milk is their paradise. When the housewife buys milk she does not buy a "germ paradise" she buys a nourishing food for her family. So she buys milk that she knows has been handled in the proper manner. She keeps it COVER-ED and COOL. For those who have to refrigerate an efficient ice box can be made at home. Write to the Red Cross, 408 Civic Block, Edmonton, Alta., and get instructions how to do it. Recipes of delicious Summer milk dishes may be had from the same source.

THE INSOLENT PEDESTRIAN
Have you ever walked along a dark road at night and cursed the motorist whose headlights have blinded you as he whirled past at thirty miles an hour?
Did you ever stop to realize that the motorist probably did not see you until he was almost upon you and that it was merely because of expert work at the wheel that you lived to curse?

Many motorists prefer to drive with dimmers. Others do not have lamps properly focused. In either case it is often impossible to notice
a pedestrian until almost upon him.
Some pedestrians feeling that the road is as much their own as the motorist's insist upon remaining on the center and forcing the driver to swerve aside—even when a machine is coming in the opposite direction and such swerving is extremely dangerous.

Far too often the driver notices the pedestrian too late—and we have another fatality. Pedestrians can often see and hear an approaching automobile long before the driver sees them.
Step aside and be safe. No motorist wants to kill you—but he may do it if you are too pugnacious.

The Canadian Pacific's Big Five

2-Buff, the converging point of the quinter trains operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

When the Big Five, the quintette of trains de luxe to be operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway on express schedules from the east of Canada and from Chicago this coming summer to the coast, make their initial runs, the dramatic spectacle will be presented daily of five great trains flying across the Dominion and all converging on the wonder district of the American continent, the Canadian Rockies, where snow-capped mountain peaks and beautiful valleys and lakes vie with another in attracting visitors from all parts of the United States and the rest of the world.

The key train of the quintette will be the "Trans-Canada" which will have two others "The Imperial"
and "The Toronto-Vancouver" express will have their runs entirely in Canadian territory. The balance of the five, "The Mountaineer" and

"The Soo-Pac" will leave from Chicago for the Canadian Rockies and the Pacific coast and will consequently run partly through the United States. The "Trans-Canada" and the "Mountaineer" are all sleeping car trains.

The "Trans-Canada" with a reputation throughout the world covers the 2885 miles between Montreal and Vancouver in 89 hours and 16 minutes. As part of its equipment it carries an open observation car between Calgary and Kamloops.
This train starts on May 13. The "Imperial" and the "Toronto-Vancouver" express operating from the coast to Montreal and Toronto respectively are both year round trains except for modified schedule.

Finally, there will be "The Mountaineer" and "The Soo-Pac" running out of Chicago for Vancouver, B.C. The former will start its daily run to Vancouver on June 11
and the train will commence operation from the coast to Chicago on June 15. In this run ten hours will be cut off last year's figures the journey taking 78 hours as against 88 hours and fifteen minutes last year.
The "Soo-Pac" will leave Chicago on June 28 until August 30, and from July 2 until August 30 in the opposite direction. Both the latter two trains consist of all sleeping cars.

Gigantic Merchandise Mart is World's Largest Business Building

The Merchandise Mart of Chicago, Twice the Size of the World's Largest Business Building, to Cost $30,000,000.

Chicago, Ill., (Special)—Chicago is to have a gigantic Merchandise Mart housed in its own building which will be twice the size of the largest business building in the world. This mammoth structure, two city blocks in length, 18 to 22 stories high is planned for the service and convenience of merchandise buyers of the world. It will cost $30,000,000. Construction will begin immediately.

Within the walls of this huge edifice the retail merchants of the United States, Canada and foreign countries will be able to see, under one roof, hundreds of lines of the world's best merchandise.

The project will be the largest single development of "air rights"—the privilege of building over railroad tracks. The property of the new building left except for caissons begins 23 feet above "datum."

This great Mart, which will house sales quarters and merchandise displays of several hundred of the country's foremost manufacturers, wholesalers and importers, will be located in the rapidly developing new river district, and will occupy, a distinctly conspicuous position just across the river from Wacker Drive at Wells Street, where the southern facade of the structure will be visible for blocks. The site was formerly that of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company's passenger station. The building will extend 724 feet on Kinzie Street, 577 feet on the river front and 324 feet on Wells Street with a diagonal frontage facing Orleans and Franklin Streets. It will be set back from the river about 80 feet to accommodate a broad upper level drive extending from Wells to Franklin. The main entrance of the building will face the river and the drive.

The Merchandise Mart will have a total floor space of about 4,000,000 square feet as compared with slightly less than 1,000,000 square feet, which is the floor area of the Furniture Mart, the next largest building. Each of the eighteen main floors will have an area of more than 200,000 square feet.

The manufacturers' exhibits will include textiles, ready-to-wear, toys, lace, gloves, corsets, millinery, silver ware, glass, rugs, knit goods, hosiery shoes, men's wear, fancy goods, sport goods, art and antiques, jewelry, trunks, toilet articles, house furnishings, office equipment and scores of other merchandise displays. Among the largest tenants will be the wholesale and manufacturing sales departments of Marshall Field & Company.

On all floors of the Mart will be great corridors, with all the appearance of boulevards, more than 550 feet in length, on either side of which will be the shops displaying their varied lines—veritable "business streets." These great corridors will be impressively treated architecturally and with the large space available it will be possible to house the selling activities and warehousing of many allied concerns on one floor, thus attaining the advantages of concentrated groupings.

Probably no building in the world will have such facilities for receiving and shipping merchandise as the new Merchandise Mart. The entire ground level below the street floor will be a modern freight station. Private tracks for inbound carload freight will extend under the center of the building. The Chicago and Northwestern Railway will operate an inbound freight station for less than carload lots, as well as an outbound station, which will connect with all other roads through its new Provision yards. The Merchandise as it comes into this big freight station will be loaded into high-speed conveyors and transported immediately to the exact floor and aisle of the merchant for whom it is intended.

Connection will be made with the Illinois Tunnel Company's system of freight transportation, which has more than sixty miles of tracks beneath the streets and buildings of the city, reaching all other railroad terminals. A river dock for vessels will connect with the south freight elevators of the building.

One of the interesting features planned for the Mart will be a Merchants' Club in the tower of the building, with lounging rooms, reading and smoking rooms, where the retailer may relax and meet his friends. The Mart will provide the retailer with everything but a place to sleep. He can go direct from the train to the Mart with his baggage. Here his hotel reservations will be taken care of, his baggage transported to his hotel and stored in his room. Restaurants, lunch rooms and grills in the Mart will further economize his time. He will have the facilities of a barber shop, and a branch post office, telegraph office and public stenographers will afford him the opportunity to handle his correspondence without leaving the building. One of the biggest telephone exchanges in the world will be installed in the Mart.

Many other unique features are being considered for the Mart, including an Assembly Hall, where train meetings, business conferences, and fashion shows may be held from time to time. As the plans are worked out many other novel features may be decided upon.

PROTEST ROUTE OF NEW MAIN HIGHWAY

Edmonton—E. E. Sparks M.L.A. and Mayor Hugh Montgomery headed a delegation from Wetaskiwin that waited upon Premier Brownlee and Hon. O. L. McPherson minister of public works, asking for a reconsideration of the route proposed on the reconstruction of the main highway from Wetaskiwin to Camrose.

Objection was taken by the delegation to the fact that northbound traffic will be diverted from the town by this proposed revision, and instead it was asked that a route be adopted that would bring all traffic from the east into Wetaskiwin, going thence north or south.

THE JAZZ SINGER

"Good evening Cantor" Clarence answered a little confused.

"Well you came to see me?" "Ah—well—ah—I—I graduate from City College in a few days and I—ah—just dropped in to tell you about it. Good evening" Clarence backed hastily out into the hallway and closed the door behind him. The Cantor turned to his wife puzzled. "What's the matter with him?" he questioned. "What's happened to-day Sara? He snuffed the orders of cleaning and cooking."

"Well, is—you'll find out at supper Yosef! Mrs Rabinowitz smiled in an attempt to conceal her excitement.

"Him! I smell turkey" The Cantor sniffed wisely. "It's only Thursday. What kind business is turkey in the middle of the week? You are expecting company, no?"

"Him! Such a creature," she beamed but the secret was becoming too much for her to keep. "Don't you know what day it is today?"

"Thursday. It is no kind of holiday?" The Cantor was still puzzled but he smiled on the anxious happy figure of his wife.

"It's today your birthday Yosef," Mrs Rabinowitz cried throwing her arms about her husband's neck and kissing him. "You're sixty years old today."

"Sixty—is—sixty years old. It could be!" The Cantor kissed his wife and smiled a little sadly. Sixty years was long to live, yet it seemed to him now so short a space of time.

"Yes it is" Mrs Rabinowitz was answering his quizzical look. "And you should live, mine teure, to be a hundred and sixty and not miss one day in the synagogue. The turkey what I told you that's a present from Mr Yudelson. And the jug of wine he brought! We're making for you a surprise! And what do you think? They brought you a beautiful praying shawl!"

"Praying shawl? Who did?"

"Both of them. Mr Yudelson and Clarence—he brought you a present from the whole choir." Mrs Rabinowitz opened the sideboard door and got out the gifts unwrapping them proudly, and taking more joy in the thought that was given her husband than if it had been for her. "See!" she held up the shawls. "This one is Clarence's and this one from Mr Yudelson." She spread the shawls out on the table with a loving hand.

"Yudelson's jewelry business must be making lots of money" should be able to give such nice presents! The Cantor examined these hawls with appreciation.

Mrs Rabinowitz watched her husband in silence. She started as though to speak and then stopped.

"Yosef—I—I didn't get you no present this year, she finally acknowledged.

"You don't have to, Sara" the Cantor put a caressing arm about his wife.

"Well the true is I did. But I have to change it" Mrs Rabinowitz looked up at her husband a little confused.

"Would you believe it I got you a praying shawl too!"

"No, no, Sara, you shouldn't to change it. Now we've got enough praying shawls for twenty years!" He kissed his wife happily.

"You should wear them in good health, mine teure" Mrs Rabinowitz exclaimed.

The Cantor began to fold up his shawls carefully and to return them to their paper. He settled his skull cap and reached for his hat.

"Well I'm going to the Synagogue for a little while Sara" the Cantor explained. "I want I should wear the praying shawl you give me. Where is it?"

Mrs Rabinowitz delightedly produced her gift and opened it.

"It's beautiful!" The Cantor complimented his wife, shaking out the scarf and putting it about his shoulders. "We'll save the others! He kissed the mazzuzah and opened the door.

"Don't stay too long—everything is on the stove!" Mrs Rabinowitz called after her husband. "Supper will soon be ready."

"Just a little while Sara" the Cantor returned closing the door behind him.

Mrs Rabinowitz once more took up her housewifely duties. But as she saw the Cantor's steps dying away she took a telegram from her bosom and kissed it. Once more she opened it and looked longingly on the word. "Though she was unable to read it, she knew every word by heart.

Three weeks it had been since she had heard heard from Jackie in Chicago, and now this telegram—home in a few days! She kissed the signature lovingly and then reached up on a high shelf and brought down a vase. From the vase she produced a packet of letters, tied with a little blue ribbon. She untied the package tenderly and placed the wire on the top and then retied them.

Through the open window came the sound of a hurdy gurdy. An operatic air rolled to a climatic ending and changed to a jazz tune. Mrs Rabinowitz heard the music and smiled. It sounded so boisterously happy and curious fingers. "All right. I'll show you" Jack began to open his travelling bag. "See, Mama, that's an expensive bag. That is genuine pigskin. And look Mama! he pulled out a pair of pajamas 'see that? That's pajamas Two parts, in the winter you can wear one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, a dollar twenty. Stop when you get to three dollars."

Sara watched in awe the revelation of her son's belongings. They were so different from the things she had bought for him. "Oh, what a big 'pocketbook'!" she exclaimed as Jack took out a leather case.

"That's not a pocketbook. That's a picture!" Jack explained opening it. "A picture from you?" Mrs Rabinowitz reached for the case. "What do I want of my picture. That's the girl I wrote about Mama. The one who did so many wonderful things for me. Look Mama! Jack was attempting to turn the subject 'what do you think of the picture?'"

"No, I don't like it. What do I want of my picture. That's the girl I wrote about Mama. The one who did so many wonderful things for me. Look Mama! Jack was attempting to turn the subject 'what do you think of the picture?'"

"It's a beautiful girl Jackie" Mrs Rabinowitz clung to the picture and refused to have her attention averted. "She lives in that house?" She pointed to the large pillared porch that appeared in the background. "She's got a husband, no?"

"No, not yet Mama" Jack was stooping over his satchel and rummaging about in it so that the flush that mounted to his cheeks seemed to come on by degrees. "You see she was born in that big house. And then she came to New York to study singing and now she's going to be a big star in a musical comedy. Look Mama! Jack brought out a small package. It got something for you. It's a surprise. Get your eyes on it. One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, a dollar twenty. Stop when you get to three dollars."

Obediently Mrs Rabinowitz shut her eyes tightly and mumbled to her self Jack unwrapped the box and touched the spring of the velvet jewel's box.

"Now open your eyes Mama" "Diamonds! With stones in it!" Mrs Rabinowitz threw up her hands and stared. "Jackie! Are you sure it's for your mama?"

"Of course it is!" Jack was removing the brooch and pinning it on his mother's bosom. "See isn't that swell? Jackie never did you get all that money? You didn't do any wrong did you? Mrs Rabinowitz touched the brooch with awed fingers. "Don't worry Mama! I got so much money Rockefeller is jealous of me—and Henry Ford is always trying to borrow from me! He patted his mother's shoulder. "Gee Mama how everything looks natural. But you have made some 'improvements' Jack looked about the room. The same furniture—the same everything Oh and you got a phonograph I knew you were saving all those soap wrap pers for something But it's funny too. When I used to try to remember this room when I was out on the road it seemed so big—and now it looks so small. And you can still see the Synagogue windows. I remember the day I broke one."

"Oh and I'll never forget how much it cost to fix it! Mrs Rabinowitz rejoined smartly.

"Let's forget about that Mama! Jack laughed. Does the phonograph play?" He walked over to the machine and began to examine the records. "Oh Mama, what expensive records—'Il Trovatore' Pagliacci! You haven't got Red Hot Mama! Have you?"

"Red Hot Mama? What's that?" Mrs Rabinowitz questioned in bewilderment.

WHEN ALL NEW YORK ENTHUSES

TO ADD TO THE EXCITEMENT OF THE "GLORIOUS BETSY" PREMIERE ALONG COMES AN ARMORED TRUCK TO COLLECT THE NIGHT'S RECEIPTS

"Glorious Betsy," a feature motion picture adapted from Rida Johnson Young's successful play of the same name, had its premiere at the Warner Theatre, in New York, last week, with Dolores Costello in its stellar role.

This sounds like the ordinary announcement of the introduction of a new picture, but there was nothing ordinary about the introduction of this particular one. As a matter of fact the premiere took on many hues that made it extraordinary.

It is an old story that New York and its love of crowds. It will stop everything to look at something that interests it. And nothing seems to interest it as much as motion picture openings. Girls flock to them to see the gowns worn by those "in the swim" and the men for no reason that any of them have been able to satisfy explain. One would think that once having seen and taken part in the excitement attendant upon the premiere of a new picture the curious would be satisfied. Logical deductions in this, however, are at fault; the curious are never satisfied.

If the opening of a new picture furnishes a happy evening for a portion of the populace, it does not do the same thing for the police. Long before the picture has begun, the police took up stations around the theatre and at the cross streets so that when darkness came and the lights went on they would be ready. Speaking of lights, Warner Bros. simply outdid themselves in brightening the brightest street in the world. From every angle, great sun arcs were trained on the Warner Theatre. Two immense van like trucks holding powerful motors were stationed across from the theatre and these furnished flood lights that made at least two blocks on Broadway as bright as noon day. When theatre time arrived travelers along Broadway had to pass through narrow lanes kept open by the police. When the cars conveying those who held the coveted passes for the presentation began arriving there was a craning of necks to get a glimpse of the occupant and to pass the word along the line as to who they were.

As for the presentation of "Glorious Betsy," it created, in a way, as much of a furor as did the arrival of its audience. This audience was the usual one typical of New York picture premiere.

It likes to think itself big. That is a way it has of "telling" itself. As a matter of fact, it isn't a bit big. At all events the audience that sat in judgment on "Glorious Betsy" was anything but big. It proved this. It greeted the appearance of Dolores Costello on the screen with long applause and there was recognition for Conrad Nagel and the other popular members of the cast. Then it proceeded to enjoy the Vitaphone presentation of one of the sweetest love stories that the screen has ever known. It followed the story of the Belle of Baltimore and Jerome Bonaparte with rapt attention, seemed carried away with the singing of the "Marsellaise" in the picturesque Patterson home in Baltimore and looked upon Napoleon as an arch villain when he refused the glorious Betsy permission to land with her husband in France. No, there was nothing blasé about this audience and for once, at least, it was natural in applauding something worthy of its appreciation.

The one deduction to be drawn from its introduction is that Warner Bros. have scored one of their biggest hits with the production of "Glorious Betsy" and that the work will do more to strengthen Dolores Costello's popularity with the movie world at large than any other film in which it has been her good fortune to appear. The role of Betsy Patterson is one that fits Miss Costello as nothing else has ever fitted her on the screen. In it she is the joyous, winsome, alluring, fascinating and dominant. As has been suggested, she has never done anything so well.

As for the cast, it was splendid throughout. Conrad Nagel gives a virile performance of Jerome Bonaparte, full of life and power and possessing all the charms of manner and person calculated to win the love of the glorious Betsy. All of the Vitaphone sequences were enthusiastically applauded for New York has taken it for granted that sound pictures through the medium of Vitaphone are now here for all time to increase the efficiency, as well as add to the entertaining value, of the motion picture screen.

The Hardy schoolboys soon beat the local lads in the basketball game played at the school grounds last week. The score was 27-18.

Mr and Mrs R. D. Brown, who formerly resided here were visiting friends in town last week. They returned to Donalds on Monday via motor, after being the guests of Mrs H. Wallace.

The Clifton house on Main street has received a couple of coats of paint this week, and many others are being brightened up, too! Seems that the cleanup paint-up campaign is bearing fruit. It improves the appearance of the town as well as adds to the value of the holdings!

Things don't always turn out as we expect—and that goes for the accident sheet. But carry accident insurance. Joe Welch, phone 57.

The Gilt Edge Council are advertising their tax sale in this issue under the Tax Recovery Act. This may serve as a reminder to others who have no desire to lose their property.

FIELD GRAIN COMPETITION

The Wainwright Agricultural society are arranging to hold a Field Grain competition for the 1928 season, provided that enough entries are in the hands of the secretary by June 30th, next. All are asked to govern themselves accordingly.

According to the plans of the stationing committee, at the United church conference held in Edmonton all last week, we learn that Rev G. Pybus will be moved from Wainwright to his new charge at Daysland, Alta. He will be leaving at the end of June.

Kitty, dear! She's soon to be here! today WEDNESDAY

Mr and Mrs R. Watson motored down from Edmonton last week on a visit to their daughter who is teaching school at Piastol.

Mr W. Hansen, who is working for Mr F. Vick, had a runaway team last week. Bill was thrown heavily to the ground and suffered a broken leg. He is now in the Vermillion hospital progressing nicely.

Mrs J. W. Stuart is away to Calgary this week acting as delegate for the local W.I. at the annual convention which is being held there.

Everybody's busy now at the park making arrangements for the annual buffalo shipping to the north country.

We learn that the several Roumanian families of emigrants who recently arrived here are now all placed on farms throughout the district and all are steadily employed.

L. Messier and H. Laird made a trip to the city by auto over the week end. A bad storm in that neck of the woods made the travelling somewhat tiresome for several miles east of Edmonton.

Use Fly X-it to keep flies and mosquitoes off your cattle; for sale at Wainwright Pharmacy Ltd.

Mrs Alec. Adams is away this week on a visit to relatives.

It is truly a sad sight to see the young leaves on the trees over a big area of our district being destroyed by the young caterpillar pest which seems to have reached alarming proportions this Spring. Possibly the destruction of the "tent" with coal oil (which is being tried in several districts) will alleviate the trouble to some extent.

WHAT IS THIS GOLF?

Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a rich man to enjoy. It is physical and mental exertion made attractive by the fact that you have to dress for it in a $200,000 club house.

Golf is what letter-carrying, ditch-digging and carpet-beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty-looking gentlemen who require a difficult kind of implement for every mood.

Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up and the toughest looking after you have been at it ten or twelve years. It is probably the only game in which you can play as long as a quarter of a century and then discover that it was too deep for him in the first place.

The game is played on carefully selected grass with little white balls and as many clubs as the player can afford to buy. These balls cost from $5 to $25, and it is possible to support a family of ten people (all adults) on the money represented by the balls lost by some golfers in a single after noon.

A golf course has eighteen holes, sixteen of which are unnecessary and put in to make the game harder. A "hole" is a tin cup in the centre of a "green." A "green" is a small parcel of grass costing about $1.98 a blade, and usually located between a brook and a couple of apple trees or a lot of "unfinished excavations." The idea then is to get the ball from a given point into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the greatest number of words.

The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about $200 worth of curious looking implements, especially designed to provoke the owner.

Each implement has a specific purpose and ultimately some golfers get to know what that purpose is. They are the exception.

After each hole has been completed the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says "Made that in five. That's one above par. Shall we play for fifty cents on the next hole, too, Ed?"

After the final, or eighteenth hole the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached eighty-seven. He then gets the mail from a post of gin sings "Sweet Adeline" with six of eight other liars and calls it the end of a perfect day.
